California and the Civil War Exhibit

This exhibit will explore California's political and military connection to the American Civil War, as well as the importance of California's gold to the preservation of the Union. The Civil War is one of the best-known and most studied topics in American history, but California's role in this event has rarely been addressed. This exhibit will coincide with and complement the Smithsonian's Lincoln exhibit on display at The California Museum.

May 22, 2009 thru May 23, 2010
Relics of the Past: Flags from the Civil War Exhibit

The California State Capitol is home to a remarkable collection of nearly 50 flags dating from the Civil War, Spanish American War and World War I. Originally kept in the Adjutant General's Office in the State Capitol, the flag collection was later displayed in the State Capitol rotunda. Since 1928, the flag collection has undergone extensive conservation efforts to preserve these fragile pieces of our State's history. This exhibit features a number of conserved Civil War flags from the Capitol Historic Flag Collection. Some of these flags were flown on display on the parade ground, while others have accompanied Californians into battle. Many of the flags to be exhibited have never before been seen by the public. This exhibit is a unique opportunity and will offer the public a once in a lifetime chance to view this remarkable collection.

Spring 2009 thru Spring 2010
Thomas Starr King Exhibit

This exhibit will be presented in partnership with the California State Legislature Joint Committee on Rules, State Capitol Museum, and California State Parks. It will showcase the placement of the statue of Unitarian Minister Thomas Starr King on the second floor landing of the historic Capitol building. Thomas Starr King was described as "a tower of strength to the cause of his country" by the California Legislature in 1927. The statue, currently located in the National Statuary Hall, symbolizes California's debt to King and reflects his important role in California History. From the statues' new location in the California State Capitol, the public will be exposed to King's legacy as tireless advocate for Union loyalty during the Civil War, his support for an early form of the Red Cross, and his efforts as promoter of California's natural beauty.

October 17 Tentative

Governors Day Living History Program

The California State Capitol will be turned back to the years 1899-1917, when volunteers and staff of the Capitol Museum costumed in the attire of the period portray Governors Henry Gage, George Pardee, James Gillett, and Hiram Johnson and their wives re-enacting important events from their administrations. Each of these notable politicians discusses the issues and events that defined his term of office, such as the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire and the era of the Southern Pacific Railroad abuses. Guided tours run every 15 minutes from 10:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
