State Indian Museum Announces the 48th Annual Native American Day at State Capitol on September 25

SACRAMENTO, Calif. – California State Parks and the State Indian Museum are proud to announce a special and free 48th Annual Native American Day celebration that will take place on Friday, September 25, 2015 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the west steps of the State Capitol (on 10th street, between L and N Streets).

The annual event is proudly sponsored by the State Native American Liaisons of California, representing various California Departments and Agencies including the State Indian Museum and California State Parks. The Tribal sponsors are the Northern, Southern and Central California Tribal Chairmen's Association. Showcasing a theme of "Water: Protecting Our Natural Resources" this year, the important event is devoted to maintaining Native culture, including stories, languages, and traditions for today and for future generations. Guests will enjoy cultural performers, compelling guest speakers, the Tule River Color Guard, traditional games, music and dancing, and much more.

Then, following the fun and lively event, it's a perfect day to stop by the State Indian Museum to learn and explore even more about Native culture. While the event at the State Capitol is free that day, normal Museum hours and admission prices apply for the State Indian Museum located at 2618 K Street in Sacramento. For more information about the Native American Day event, contact the State Indian Museum at 916-324-0971 or visit www.parks.ca.gov/indianmuseum.
