

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

June 7, 2014

Gathering of Honored Elders

Welcome to all who have come together for the 37th annual Gathering of Honored Elders.

California is unique because of the rich mix of cultures and customs found here—I thank everyone in attendance for adding to that legacy.

California's Native American history and culture represent its first peoples, whose descendants continue to enrich these lands through their hard work and culture-bearing traditions.

All of you, the Elders gathered here, along with friends & family throughout the State, represent a commitment to honoring and preserving a rich Indian heritage—unique to California in many ways. I admire the work you do to teach, share, and pass this down to future generations. Thank you for your contributions to California's history and your role in shaping our State's future.

On behalf of the State of California, I offer my best wishes for a memorable day and continued dedication to your cultural traditions.

Sincerely,

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.

