ABOUT ARMSTRONG REDWOODS SNR

*Located three miles north of Guerneville on Armstrong Woods Road, Armstrong Redwoods State Natural Reserve consists of 805 acres of ancient Sequoia sempervirens, commonly known as coast redwoods. These trees stand together as a testament to the wonders of the natural world. The grove offers solace from the hustle and bustle of daily life. Temperatures are moderate, with fog year-round. The reserve includes a visitor center, self-guided nature trails, and a variety of picnic facilities.*

ABOUT AUSTIN CREEK SRA

Austin Creek State Recreation Area, which shares a boundary with Armstrong Redwoods SNR, has nearly 6,000 acres with trees that provide a bright and sunny experience in the spring and fall. Summer temperatures here can reach 100 degrees. In addition to hiking and bicycling activities, visitors can find the historic buildings of Pond Farm Pottery at Austin Creek SRA. This was the home, workshop and school of the internationally renowned ceramic artist, Marguerite Wildenhain, who settled here after World War II. Formerly a student at Germany's famous Bauhaus school of design, Wildenhain enjoyed and was inspired by the peace and natural beauty of this area.
