THE 100-ACRE PARTNERSHIP AT TAYLOR YARD

The City of Los Angeles, California State Parks and the Mountains and Recreation Conservation Authority (MRCA) are formally working together as the “100 Acre Partnership” to collaboratively plan the largest, continuous open space along the LA River. The Partnership evolved from community and stakeholder feedback and the need for a coordinated planning and improvement approach across the 100-acre Taylor Yard site. Our fourth partner, the community, is critical to the success of these efforts.

THE PASEO DEL RÍO PROJECT

The 100 Acre Partnership’s first project is Paseo del Río, a one-mile promenade with public spaces along the LA River in the Cypress Park and Glassell Park neighborhoods. The eight-acre project will extend along the G2 and G1 (Bowtie) parcels at Taylor Yard, (six acres on G2, and two acres on G1), to create one mile of riverfront public access. The Project, currently called Paseo del Río, will be supported by funding from the Santa Monica Mountains Conservancy. Project planning will begin at the end of 2020 and include extensive community input and engagement.

HOW CAN THE COMMUNITY PROVIDE INPUT ON THE PASEO DEL RÍO PROJECT?

Due to the COVID-19 crisis, the community will be asked to participate in the Paseo del Río Project in a variety of ways, such as virtual community meetings, small, virtual focus groups, online surveys and questionnaires, and other alternative information-gathering and community-building activities, projects and events.
